Marked elevation of IgG4 in a case of idiopathic retroperitoneal fibrosis associated with autoimmune pancreatitis. A 72-year-old man who was diagnosed with retroperitoneal fibrosis (RPF) associated with autoimmune pancreatitis (AIP) showed a marked elevation of serum IgG4. Although RPF is known as a benign disease, it is associated with IgG4-related disease (IgG4-RD). The patient had a good response to glucocorticoid therapy, and no abnormal findings were observed on contrast-enhanced computed tomography at 7 months after the therapy. Although the number of cases reported was small, RPF may be associated with IgG4-RD.
